Understanding Your Driving Forces

Eduard Spranger first defined six primary types or categories to define human motivation and drive. These six types are Theoretical, Utilitarian, Aesthetic, Social, Individualistic and Traditional.

With TTISI's additional insights into Spranger's original work, the 12 Driving Forces™ came to life. The 12 Driving Forces are established by looking at each motivator on a continuum and describing both ends. All of the twelve descriptors are based on six keywords, one for each continuum. The six keywords are Knowledge, Utility, Surroundings, Others, Power and Methodologies.

You will learn how to explain, clarify and amplify some of the driving forces in your life. This report will empower you to build on your unique strengths, which you bring to work and life. You will learn how your passions from 12 Driving Forces frame your perspectives and provide the most accurate understanding of you as a unique person.

Please pay careful attention to your top four driving forces, as they highlight what most powerfully moves you to action. As you examine the next tier of four driving forces, you'll recognize they may have strong pull for you, but only in certain situations. Finally, when reviewing the bottom four driving forces, you will identify your varying levels of indifference or total avoidance.

Once you have reviewed this report you will have a better grasp of one of the key areas in the Science of Self™ and will:

- Identify and understand your unique Driving Forces
- Understand and appreciate the Driving Forces of others
- Establish methods to recognize and understand how your Driving Forces interact with others to improve communication

General Characteristics

Based on your responses, the report has generated statements to provide a broad understanding of WHY YOU DO WHAT YOU DO. These statements identify the motivation that you bring to the job. However, you could have a potential Me-Me conflict when two driving forces seem to conflict with each other. Use the general characteristics to gain a better understanding of your driving forces.

Alexis tends to have an objective view of the task at hand. She is capable of functioning in an environment filled with chaos. She will focus on the objective of a situation more than the harmony of a situation. She is comfortable around people who share her interest for knowledge and especially comfortable among people with similar convictions. Alexis is very good at integrating past knowledge to solve present problems. She may spend considerable time researching a topic of interest. She insists rules and regulations must be followed by all. When Alexis believes in a cause, she will work diligently to advance it. Alexis will complete tasks and projects without the desire for public recognition. She does not let ego get in the way of the work that needs to be done. She may see money as a necessary tool versus a measurement of success. She may attempt to assist an individual or group overcome adversity.

Alexis tends to focus on the task at hand regardless of her surroundings. She tends to compartmentalize issues to keep the momentum moving forward. She will benefit from a role that allows her to gain new knowledge. She sometimes uses knowledge as a benchmark for success. Alexis looks for proven methods to accomplish everyday objectives. She places a high value on following and implementing systems. Being in total control of a situation is not a primary driving factor. She sees collaboration of the team as more important than the individual team members. Alexis may use completion of activities and tasks as a measure of her success. She may accomplish tasks for the sake of accomplishment. She will evaluate a situation and determine if it's more valuable to assist people or achieve results. She is willing to help others if they are willing to work to achieve their goals.

General Characteristics

Alexis is able to isolate personal issues and focus on professional productivity. She may choose to see the world in pieces, not as a whole. She could be instrumental in identifying informational resources. She will usually have the information to support her convictions. Alexis will be very helpful to others who share the same beliefs. She tends to focus on the greater good versus personal advancement. She may evaluate situations based on the desired outcome with little regard for utility and economic return. She can be patient and sensitive to others if they have a common cause.

Primary Driving Forces Cluster

Your top driving forces create a cluster of drivers that move you to action. If you focus on the cluster rather than a single driver you can create combinations of factors that are very specific to you. The closer the scores are to each other the more you can pull from each driver. Think about the driver that you can relate to most and then see how your other primary drivers can support or complement to create your unique driving force.

1. Objective - People who are driven by the functionality and objectivity of their surroundings.

2. Intellectual - People who are driven by opportunities to learn, acquire knowledge and the discovery of truth.

3. Structured - People who are driven by traditional approaches, proven methods and a defined system for living.

4. Collaborative - People who are driven by being in a supporting role and contributing with little need for individual recognition.

Situational Driving Forces Cluster

Your middle driving forces create a cluster of drivers that come in to play on a situational basis. While not as significant as your primary drivers, they can influence your actions in certain scenarios.

5. Selfless - People who are driven by completing tasks for the greater good, with little expectation of personal return.

46

6. Intentional - People who are driven to assist others for a specific purpose, not just for the sake of being helpful or supportive.

39

7. Altruistic - People who are driven to assist others for the satisfaction of being helpful or supportive.

38

8. Commanding - People who are driven by status, recognition and control over personal freedom.

35

Indifferent Driving Forces Cluster

You may feel indifferent toward some or all of the drivers in this cluster. However, the remaining factors may cause an adverse reaction when interacting with people who have one or more of these as a primary driving force.

9. Resourceful - People who are driven by practical results, maximizing both efficiency and returns for their investments of time, talent, energy and resources.

35

10. Receptive - People who are driven by new ideas, methods and opportunities that fall outside a defined system for living.

26

11. Harmonious - People who are driven by the experience, subjective viewpoints and balance in their surroundings.

25

12. Instinctive - People who are driven by utilizing past experiences, intuition and seeking specific knowledge when necessary.

Areas for Awareness

For years you have heard statements like, "Different strokes for different folks," "to each his own," and "people do things for their own reasons, not yours." When you are surrounded by people who share similar driving forces, you will fit in with the group and be energized. However, when surrounded by people whose driving forces are significantly different from yours, you may be perceived as out of the mainstream. These differences can induce stress or conflict.

This section reveals areas where your driving forces may be outside the mainstream and could lead to conflict. The further away you are from the mainstream on the high side, the more people will notice your passion about that driving force. The further away from the mainstream on the low side, the more people will view you as indifferent and possibly negative about that driving force. The shaded area for each driving force represents 68 percent of the population or scores that fall within one standard deviation above or below the national mean.

Norms & Comparisons Table - Norm 2014

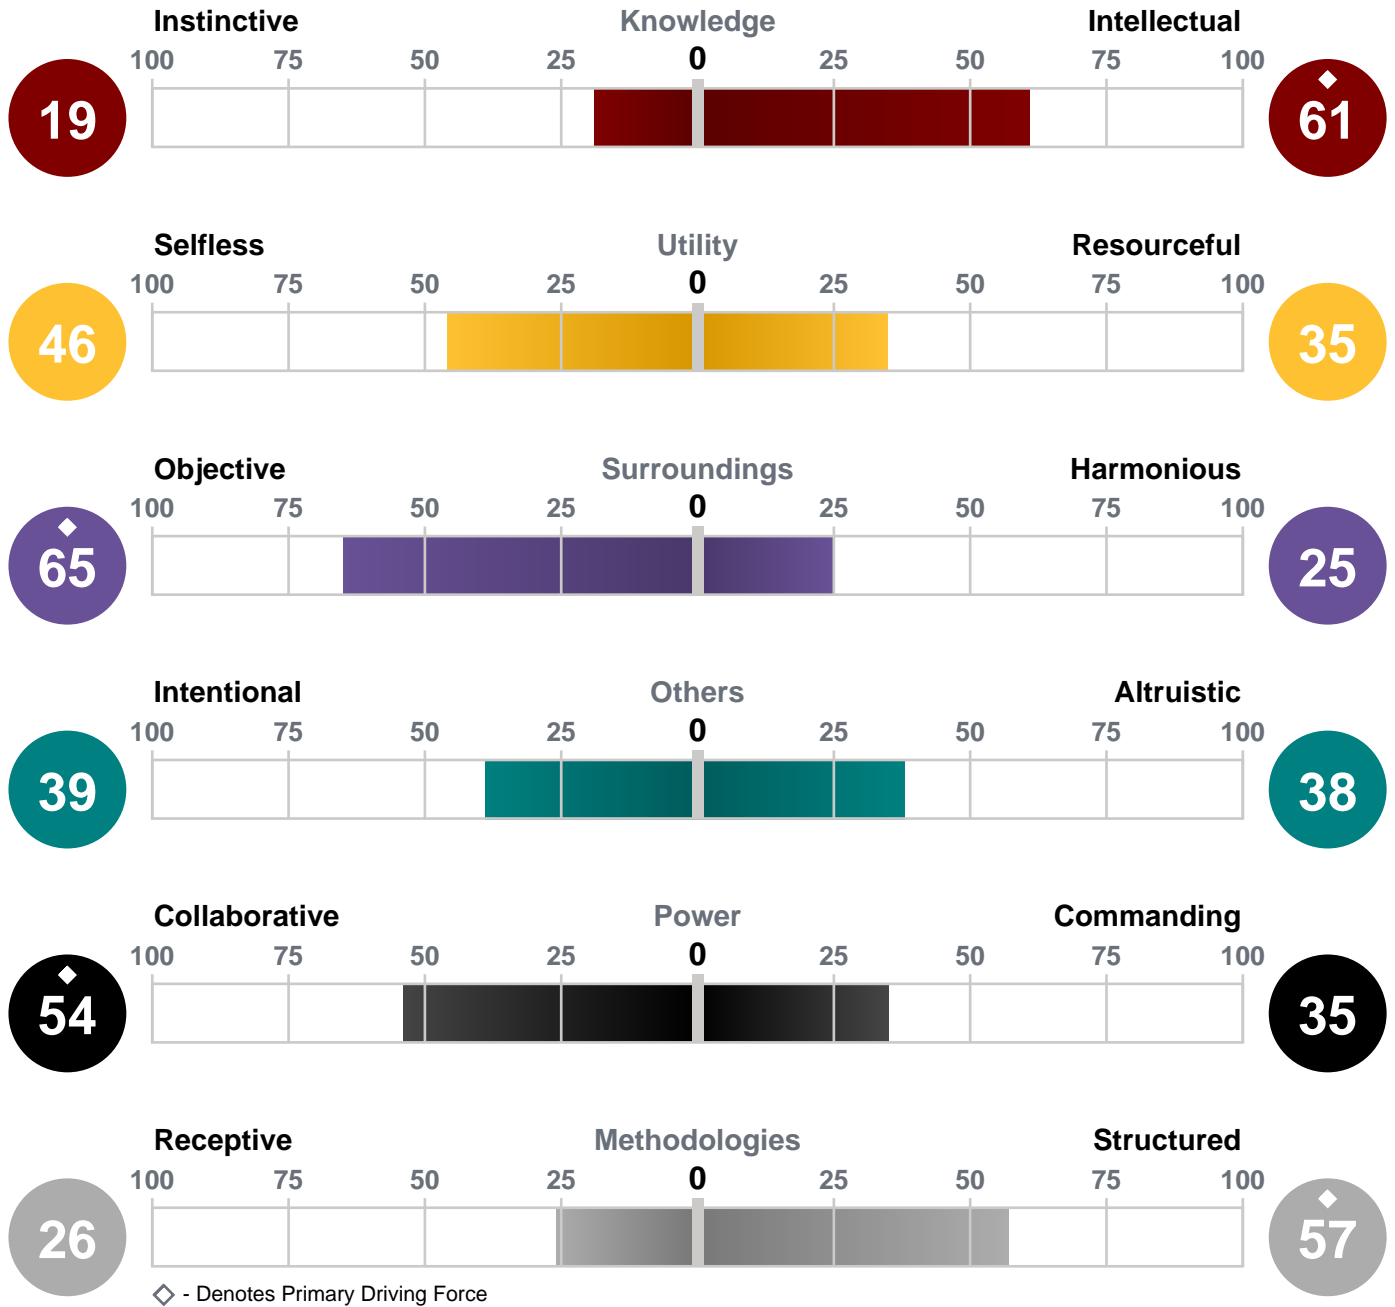

■ - 1st Standard Deviation - * 68% of the population falls within the shaded area. ■ - national mean ★ - your score
 ■ - 2nd Standard Deviation
 □ - 3rd Standard Deviation

Mainstream - one standard deviation of the national mean
Passionate - two standard deviations above the national mean
Indifferent - two standard deviations below the national mean
Extreme - three standard deviations from the national mean
